The question of what books to purchase for a public library is always a difficult one to answer since there are so many tastes to be consulted and so many technical arrangements to be met. People often wonder why such and such so called writers are not up to date and why, for example certain well known and more modern "girls books" are not to be found on the shelves. The answer is that many of these books are so trivial, too unnatural, too merely sensational or too merely "goodly" words, to deserve a place in a public or a school or a faithful Library. More popularity is often

Grate a large gathering of friends met at Mr. Perry's house on the evening of Saturday, August 7th, to see the blossoming of the night blooming cereus of which Mrs. Perry is the happy possessor. We treasure as one of the earliest memories of our childhood a similar affair, paid to a house on our native village, where this rare and beautiful plant disclosed its wonders to our enraptured vision. It was for us the first time that we were able to do not remember to have looked upon the mysterious blossom again. It was not long but we have never seen it again. The "Perry's" we understood it was precise in its expected action to a day.

FATAL ACCIDENT AT R R CROSSING

Lois Pfeiffer Struck by Locomotive at Washington Street.

Robert Pfeiffer, 58 years old, a well-known carpet weaver of Bristol, was struck by a locomotive at the Washington street crossing by a passing freight train. As the freight train was passing, the engine, with its hoses, were raised, and Pfeiffer and others standing across the tracks, when the train was passing, were struck. Pfeiffer, however, was not injured. He was walking right into the path of the engine which was travelling at a rate of about 15 miles an hour. He was a distance of 30 or 35 feet by the locomotive. Grunert and Miss Louise Brown, of Garden street, barely escaped.

In an unconscious condition, Pfeiffer was carried to his home a short distance away and two physicians were summoned. An examination was made and it was found that a number of ribs were crushed and forced into the lungs, and other internal injuries.

Witnesses state that the gates were raised when the attempt was made to cross the tracks. The gates were raised and it was found that a number of ribs were crushed and forced into the lungs, and other internal injuries.

Pfeiffer was a native of Germany, but had resided in Bristol for over twenty years and was known to a weaver in Leedom's mill.

The deceased came to Bristol twenty years ago from his native Leedom and Company moved here. He is survived by his wife, and four children, one daughter, Florence, and three sons, Augustus, Frank and Henry. The funeral will take place this afternoon at two o'clock from his late residence at 430 Washington street.

Letter to John C. Stuckert.

Bristol, Pa.

Dear Sir: We should like to print your opinion of this guarantee in this paper, where our neighbors will see it.

We will furnish the paint to paint half the house of any fair man on these terms. He shall paint the other half with whatever other paint he likes; same painter (any fair man) same way (the way of all fair painters, to make a good job). If our half doesn't take seven years, we'll give him the paint. If our half doesn't take less labor by seven years, we'll give him the paint. If our half isn't sounder six years hence, we'll give him the paint. Any color.

We say one-third, because there are two and three parts with about that difference; we say seven—there are dozens of paints with about that difference—we say one to seven, because there's a hundred that give one-third of the money paid for both paint and labor.

If there's a paint we haven't covered? Yours truly,
F. W. Devoe & Co.
Lelfeld sells our paint.

Safe and Sure.

Among the many who have recommended and endorsed by physicians is Peirce's School. For many years it has been regarded as the best remedy for the cure of coughs, and it has a strong hold on the people who are well-known people. When a child is taken with a cough, the mother's breast cannot cure a strong hold on the people who are well-known people. All doctors and dealers, etc.
